

137 Cottage St.
New Haven, Conn. 06511
USA
March 22, 1978

Mr. Charles Marowitz
The Open Space Theatre
303 Euston Rd.
London NW 1, England

CHARLES MAROWITZ

Dear Mr. Marowitz,

Enclosed is the play we discussed on the phone when you were in California in March, and which you encouraged me to send to you in London.

As I told you then, I'm sending the script to you at the suggestion of Stanley Kauffmann. After reading it, Stanley said I might tell you that he strongly recommends it to your attention.

The Moments of the Wandering Jew is complex and long and not at all in the current (current American, anyway) "neo-realist" vein. On the basis of what I know of your work --I spent 1973-4 in London and saw several Open Space productions-- I believe it's a play that will interest you.

Please write me your responses, or feel free to call collect if you're back in the US any time soon. I'm tentatively planning a trip to London some time in the next year so I'll be available to work on the script in workshop and/or production.

Sincerely,

David Cole

P.S. It occurs to me you might know--or might like to know--my book, The Theatrical Event (Wesleyan University Press, 1975; paperback, 1977), a study of the relation between shamanism and acting.

address + phone number m