Dear David - Thanks so much for your reading a message from Hawaii

JEAN ERDMAN - 1

I was already out here + where all is quiet & restful. I quite enlike this "portrait" of my Galena Pale in action - side of the Shoehing House. Joe is working on his Atlas of myths. And I on a new project - Will be back in N.Y. in October - Open eye still chugging with big plans if we can raise the funding... Hope you were pleased with the American Place theater's

KILAUEA IKI VOLCANO... in Hawaii National Park came back to life November 14, 1959 after 100 years of inactivity. At times her fiery lava fountain towered 1900 feet! Five hundred feet higher than the Empire State Building!

Aloha mi'oi

read it in your play - Jean

The "City of Cities" - "Baghdad of the Hudson" NEW YORK CITY. Brooklyn Bridge in foreground: The first bridge to span the East River to Brooklyn was opened to traffic in 1883 with a one penny toll charge. Its span is 1,595 feet with an overall length of 6,016 feet. Until 1903 this bridge was the world's largest suspension bridge.

Dear David - Sorry - it was impossible for me, at the last moment, to come to the reading. I hope it went well, & that Wynn was there. Will they do it? Going out of town soon. Let's meet & have lunch after Labor Day. The massive tome, Wat, is on my desk, casting baleful & accusatory glances at me. I intend to read it soon.
